Mysti K. writes: "I used to think that Easter was just an over-commercialized day where we would get together with family for a nice Sunday afternoon meal and let the kids look for easter eggs in the back yard.

Sure, there were some nice, traditional things that would feel familiar and brought a sense of togetherness, I guess. You know... pretty dresses... family pictures...

Still, I felt almost depressed every year over how things would so quickly go back to normal after Easter was over.

Was it even worth it? I mean, one day of joy and light and then... bam! It would be as if it had never happened. Really? This is the turning point of history? This is the foundation of the Church that's supposed to save the world?

Then one Easter, two years ago, changed all that."

Come find out what changed for Mysti at our Easter service at [CHURCHNAME] Church, [YOURCITY] at [TIME] as we celebrate the ORIGINAL story of Easter and what it's really all about!
